

Steve Woolworth brings more than a decade of leadership experience and three decades in the field. Most recently, he was vice president of behavioral health and transition services at Pioneer Human Services, a nonprofit that supports people with criminal histories through treatment, housing, and employment services. He led the design and development of Pioneer's regional recovery focused continuums of care, impacting more than 10,000 people a year.

With his unique background in community-based services, he has pushed the envelope in research, policy, and practice in the fields of behavioral health, corrections, education, homelessness, and public health.